ATLANTA — (February 12, 2020) — Forbes Travel Guide (“FTG”), the world-renowned and only global rating system for luxury hotels, restaurants and spas, today announced its annual Star Rating list, presenting The Prince Park Tower Tokyo, TAKANAWA HANAKOHRO and The Prince Akatoki London with a new Forbes Travel Guide Four-Star hotels award. The Prince Park Tower Tokyo, TAKANAWA HANAKOHRO and The Prince Akatoki London will be showcased with all of the Star Award winners on ForbesTravelGuide.com.

The Prince Park Tower Tokyo, located near Shiba Park directly overlook, Tokyo Tower. This hotel allows guests to enjoy a blend of seasonal nature and modern scenery. Standing at 33 floors above ground, the hotel offers 603 guests rooms, 17 banquets and meeting rooms, including a 2,400m² main ballroom, various restaurants, and a spa & fitness center with its own natural hot springs.

TAKANAWA HANAKOHRO is a 16-room Japanese-style inn (“ryokan”) that has opened in 2016 within Grand Prince Hotel Takanawa known for its sprawling 20,000m² Japanese garden, and its easy access from Shinagawa Station. Along with a genuine Japanese room style and the scent of traditional tatami mats, the guest rooms are furnished with low beds and sofas to present a functional yet serene Japanese space. The inn offers its own private Lounge OH-SAI and SPA TAYUTA. Guests can enjoy the Japanese tea ceremony in the tea room located in the Japanese garden, and experience Japanese cultural events in the lounge during their stay.

Located in the heart of London, UK, The Prince Akatoki London is within walking distance to Marble Arch and Hyde Park, and also boasts excellent access to Oxford Street. This hotel offers 82 guest rooms, a restaurant, lounge & bar, meeting rooms, and a gym. Having opened in September 2019, this hotel is the first property operated under The Prince Akatoki name, a global hotel brand that aims to provide luxury service with a Japanese attention to detail.
